

Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI®) Profile

For Jeff Thoren, DVM

INFP

INFP's are open-minded, idealistic, insightful, and flexible Individuals. They are values crusaders who are motivated by adding to human understanding, sharing knowledge and enthusiasm for deep passions, and upholding meaning and mystery. They are imaginative and independent, reflective, inquisitive, and tuned into possibilities. They are at their best when their inner ideals find expression in their helping of people.

Hallmark: Idealism

Original, values-focused, and caring, INFP's work well when they can foster the well-being of others and help people achieve their fullest potential. They seek meaning and purpose in all they do. They offer authenticity and a spirit of harmony, loyalty, and compassion to the people and institutions they serve.

General Strengths

- Galvanize people and organizations to action
- Remind others in creative ways about human aspirations and goals
- Focus on compassion, caring, and harmony
- Stand firmly on their values against formidable opposition

Contributions to an Organization

- Lead by promoting harmonious teams in which each person is valued
- Provide an overarching vision by articulating team ideals and a common purpose
- Influence by highlighting common values and new possibilities
- Elicit group consensus to facilitate decisions that are satisfying to all
- Motivate and inspire others to develop themselves
- Work to find matches for people in organizations
- Promote innovation, imagination, and creativity
- Quietly push an organization to uphold its values